BREED THEATER.

"Kiss of Judas," Additional Motion Picture.

As an additional feature last evening, the Breed theater presented the magnificent film "Kiss of Judas," entitled "The Kiss of Judas," and as a result none was more interesting or beautiful. This great event in the life of the Mass of Sorrows is portrayed by the finest talent procurable in Europe, the part of Christ being taken by Monsieur A. Lambert, and the part of Judas falls into the hands of Paul Monnet-Sully, whose reputation in this class of work is unparalleled. The full dignity of the subject is retained, and this masterpiece of pictorial photography thoroughly delighted the large audience.

The big feature picture, "The Voice of the Violin," is a splendid story finely enacted, while the other attractive pictures are Home at Last, Japanese Magic, Pocket Policemen and Cure for Rheumatism.

A small ovation was tendered Mr. Delaney when he sang the great baseball song, "Let's Get the Umpire's Goat," the entire audience joining in the catchy chorus and cheering the local players of the fans. With the pretty song, Schoolmates, Madame Morelle made a pronounced hit, the sweet little story of childhood being happily set to a catchy tune.

The Auditorium.

"Quality" is the descriptive word for the bill which will be seen at the Auditorium the coming week and it promises to be to the liking of all. It is just the show for this warm season of the year, a little song, a little music, a little dance, generous draughts of comedy worked in so that the interest of the audience will never tire.

The management have been most fortunate in securing for the coming week a most pretentious offering, in the miniature musical comedy entitled "The Makebelles," which is presented by Small, Slocane & Sheridan, who are known throughout the vaudeville world as the International Singers. Acts of this description are very seldom seen in the popular priced houses and for those visiting the Auditorium next week there is a treat in store.

A novel comedy in "Richy W. Craig," whose name is familiar to theater goers of all the large cities. Mr. Craig and his "new partner," the "homograph," never fail to establish themselves as favorites in every place they appear. Richy W. Craig is the originator of many comedy ideas seen up on the stage today, and he is the first to use a homograph as a partner with results that must be seen to be appreciated. The "Richy W. Craig" couple, will not doubt be a big hit with their vocal and burlesque dramatic work, which causes laughs loud and long. The finger which these clever performers put into their act make it go with a zest which should be appreciated. A Vitaphone hit will lead the pictures; it is entitled "Outcast of Heroina," and is a story of the Puritan times in old New England. Another Vitaphone will be "The Dynamite Waitcoat," a comedy that will cause all to sit up and take notice.

Sell and the Biograph Co. are also well represented the coming week.
